

Note from the Editors

continent. 1.3 (2011) 148

With this third issue of continent. we welcome you to join these conversations. The announced thematic for this issue, autonomy, was announced out of an interest to understand the contours of our being together, not the qualities or conditions necessary to identify what might exist in isolation. This summer brought some significant events and comminglings: we sponsored a symposium, with Christian Hänggi, a symposium at the historic Cabaret Voltaire in Zürich; we welcomed several new talented folks into the organization; and our dear Nico had back surgery.

Fortunately, Nico is recovering nicely. We cannot emphasize enough the significant contributions made by Isaac Linder, Nina Jäger, Peggy Bloomer, and Ryland Johnson. Without their efforts this issue would not be available. This publication is created and sustained through the good will and good fun of our contributing editors. We see continent. as an opportunity to bring our favorite people and projects together and thus this issue features conversations, between authors, between times, between subjects.

You are warmly welcomed to join this conversation and we encourage you to bring your favorite topics, projects, and people.
